PRAISE THE LORD.

LETTER FROM GEORGE O. HARNES

[Conclusion of the letter defending the true God against Ingersoll's attack on the God he sees revealed in the Old Testament.]

And here we have an agent of evil that Col. Ingersoll "cannot away with," any more than a personal God. Once admit a devil, great enough and wicked enough, to bear off all the evil in the universe on his broad shoulders, and skepticism vanishes from the scene.

I am bold to write that men may dash themselves against these problems of good and evil till doomsday, and they will never get a satisfactory clue as the one plainly furnished in the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, viz: A good God—a bad devil. They habitually stand or fall together in the Scripture; which, throughout, is engaged in this war of Gods, and closes with the complete victory of the "God and Father of our LORD Jesus Christ" over the combined forces of the "God of this World."

The ignominious defeat of the "Big Five" hinges on neglect of this biblical argument, which alone can turn Col. Ingersoll's flank. And why reject it when so plainly taught? The limits of this letter forbid the proof, but any honest man, with an open Bible in his hand, can overtake the facts. And I boldly assert that no other solution is possible. Witness the issue of the one against five combat, and the victory of one. Whereas Scripture says its champions go into battle assured that "one shall chase a thousand and two put 10,000 to flight," "How is this?" thoughtful men must ask—"When one 'infidel' drives five 'devout believers' in headlong rout?" Tell it not in Gath; publish it not in Ashkelon lest the daughters of the uncircumcised hear it and rejoice.

One word of counsel to any who may wish to avail themselves of the clue furnished in this necessarily brief skeleton sketch of the narrow way through which willing souls may "escape for their life." Be not discouraged easily. Learn to sit down before a jagged verse of Scripture, like the hundreds of them there, and with the God you want, firmly entrenched in your heart of hearts, "wait patiently on the LORD." Learn to take a negative position first, and "possess your souls in patience." Say, "I do not know what this means; but I do know what it don't mean." That which "don't mean" is what some orthodox blunderer, holding fast the "traditions of the elders," which have so often "made the Word of God of none effect," has tried to force down your throat, by the old method of prescriptive authority. Fight for liberty and life here. Yield not an inch of ground. Drag these unwilling hosts to the altar of sacrifice and slay them there. When this is done, be sure that light is not far off; and one day, or night, when, perhaps, you least expect it, the solution will break in upon you like the unraveling of a vexed mathematical or commercial or mechanical problem does upon the scientist, the merchant or the artisan. All great discoveries are these God-given inspirations. How often abused, we know, but more or less "gifts of God."

My sincere hope is to furnish a useful clue to harassed souls. My own has been such. I would have others share the "peace that passeth understanding," that comes to one who fights, at dreadful odds, against doubts that evil intrude, do what one may, and all at once discovers the "pathway of power," the clue to the labyrinth; the highway to assured victory.

This is without exaggeration the "secret of the LORD." I write this with the full knowledge of how easily Col. Ingersoll, if he took the trouble to do it, might use the "letter which killeth" against this amiable view of Scripture. I feel all the disadvantage of the position as judged by reason alone. Before that tribunal I stand self-condemned, needing no answer. But my appeal is to the "Spirit" of man that lies in its captive cell, the only just and true arbiter, in coming to a right decision. The ermine of this Judge is spotless. And I own, at once, that some spiritual discernment is needful. All may have it who want it. It is not so much a lack of evidence, but lack of this spiritual capacity, that makes the settlement of the vexed question so difficult, and almost impossible.

But I would deprecate this appeal to the naked "letter" of Scripture. Even Satan kept to the verba of the O. Testament when he tempted the Son of God. "It is written again," alone failed him. My only plea is for a possible ground to stand upon, so that I may have the God I want and cannot do without, boast as I will. As I wrote in my last: "Were the ground but narrowed to a javelin's point, piercing each foot that stood upon it, that were better than the awful alternative—No God." To my mind—I may not speak for others—the solution indicated above is more than a "point of grace." It is "a large place"—a "way of pleasantness, a path of peace"—where happy souls may walk in "green pastures and beside still waters."

Nor have I here, since limits forbid, depicted any of the common vantage ground so often availed of by the many defenders of the truth. All comparatively useless, so long as this central difficulty could not be settled. "A chain is only as strong as its weakest link"—not its strongest. What avails all argument to prove the existence of a God, if one is, at heart, ashamed of Him, after we have Him.

So, I have not used Paley's irresistible argument from design. To have a designer, who makes all the palpable blunders, so graphically put by Col. Ingersoll, is to rouse a Frankenstein giant, who devours us. "Let a sleeping dog lie," says the proverb. Let God be unknown if knowledge of Him be a curse. A bad God is worse than none. The inquisitor's God; Calvin's, when he burnt Servetus; Smith's, when he slew saints—had better "never been born" in human brain and heart. So we all have Gods—1,400,000,000 of them! How important to get the "only living and true God!" There is but one, in truth. I don't want to know a God, but THE God. "LALAHU AL ALAH," is true as gospel. "MAHAMMAD RASUL ALAH" is the qualifying sentence that turns that God into a demon of fire and sword. The tree of the "knowledge of good and evil" over again. It ruined the recent deed. It is ruin to the last.

Nor have I attempted to ask the unanswerable question—"Why must all THE would have a God?" Scripture has never answered it. The "little flock" who say there is none, cannot turn the rushing tide of human aspirations. But every honest man ought to answer this question, honestly, before he takes another speculative step.

All these arguments may fairly be gone over you and me, after it is settled that we have a God, well worth arguing about.

With most of what Col. Ingersoll has written I cordially agree. That which shocks "the orthodox" is a cup of joy and refreshment to me. I loathe the God he utterly demolishes, as much as he. But I cannot help saying he has never touched my God yet. And I will not insult him by thinking that he does not wish to believe in a God. Whom he CAN HAVE IN RESPECT. I but echo the wish of every true heart, that his brilliant gifts may yet be on the side of that God—LEAVING NINETEENTHS OF WHAT HE HAS WRITTEN TO SAY AND ETERNAL TRUTH. EVER IN JESUS. GEO. O. HARNES.

"Mr. Sampson asked me to be his wife last night, papa." "And what did you say?" "I told him he must give me a little time, and he said, 'I could have the usual thirty days, or 5 per cent. off for cash, and then he stopped and apologized. What am I to think of him, papa?' "Think of him?" shouted the old man. "That young fellow is full of business and you can't say 'yes' too quick." —[Toronto Grip.]

Rev. Chas. Poundtext (who has been writing his sermon, looking up suddenly)—"Maria, will you take the children out of the room for a few minutes?" Mrs. Poundtext (in surprise)—"Certainly, my dear; but are they annoying you?" Rev. Poundtext—"Not at all; but I have just dipped the marriage brush in the ink well and I would like to be at liberty to make a few remarks."

In 24 years of republican rule republican presidents signed 1,524 private pension bills. Within three years and a half President Cleveland has signed over 1,200. By the 4th of March next he will have signed as many in 4 years as all the republican presidents did in 24 years. With all the clamor against him, the soldiers have never had a better friend than Grover Cleveland.

Somewhat or other, even a sensible man never wholly gets over his surprise because other people aren't so much interested as he is in the first photograph of his first baby. —[Somerville Journal.]

And the old folks laugh when they find that the pleasant California liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, is more easily taken and more beneficial in its action than bitter, nauseous medicines. It strengthens the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach, and Bowels, while it arouses them to a healthy activity. For sale by A. R. Penny, Stanford.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—Frost has done much damage to the tobacco remaining in the field. The greater part of the crop in this county has been safely housed.

—The "Return Party" Friday night was attended by a large number of the young folks, and all had a delightful time. Quite a number of visitors were present, among them some of Stanford's sweetest and gentlest.

—Our town is fast becoming a town of preachers. Elder Frank will come here to live in a few weeks. Elder G. W. Yancey, who had charge of the Christian church for about two years and moved away during the summer, has returned with his family and will abide with us. Rev. J. R. Peeples, once pastor of the Methodist church, will soon come here to reside again. This is such a good and pleasant place to live, it is hard for any one to leave and stay away. People sometimes leave expecting to find a better place, but they "can't" do it, you know.

THE MAN FOR THE PLACE.—There is no man of any character in this country who will say that President Cleveland has broken any of the pledges he made to the country. His administration has been particularly free from all soundals; his personal integrity and honesty are not questioned by his bitterest foes; his administration has been honest and economical, national in spirit, wise in policy. The country in his hands has progressed and is prosperous. We have had no financial panics like those in the Grant and Hayes administration. The business people have confidence in Cleveland because they know that he is honest—not a high-dyer nor a sensational man. He means best for his country at all times, and being conservative in his temper and conduct, he will never jeopardize the business men's interests to trench himself in a political point of view. —[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

It has been estimated that there are now 80,000 salesmen on the road in this country, and that their expense alone averages $1,625 a year each. This means an outlay of $130,000,000 a year, and, counting an average salary of $1,000 per year, the grand total is swelled to $210,000,000 expended by and on traveling salesmen. This immense sum is scattered throughout the entire country and furnishes an important item of railway and hotel profits.

—It is no joking matter to violate the prohibition laws in Kansas. A man named Stewart sold 208 glasses of beer and was sent to jail for 17 years. This did not satisfy the Attorney-General, who proposed to confiscate the handsome business block where the beer was sold to satisfy the fines and costs, which are only $25,000.

The movement of Mormons upon Mexico is assuming large proportions, and extensive purchases of land have been made by them. Perhaps the Utah problem is to solve itself by the emigration of promoters of polygamy.

As William bent over her fair face he whispered: "Darling, if I should ask you in French if I might kiss you, what would you answer?" She, summoning up her scant knowledge of the French, said, "Billet doux!"

Mr. Harrison's plan of paying the surplus to the States, then taking the money of the States to pay back into the surplus, is a piece of statesmanship which will excite the envy of all our other statesmen. —[C-J.]

HUSTONVILLE.

—September's late frosts, especially that of Saturday night, put an end to the late vegetation.

—John F. Frye and D. S. Carpenter returned from their western trip last week in good condition.

—We hear of no new cases of sickness and no improvement in the condition of those heretofore reported.

—Mr. Green invited the other three Sunday-Schools in town and two from the country to unite with his Hustonville charge in a general jubilee on Sunday, Oct. 1. The attendance was large and the exercises very interesting.

—Misses Blakeman and Thompson, of Christian College, conducted a party of pupils through the magic mysteries of the centennial at Cincinnati last week and as they did not get home until Sunday morning, it is shrewdly suspected that they formed a part of the unrepentant number of "lost children" so kindly rescued and cared for by the centennial police Friday. Gov. Burkner will please note this signal deliverance as an appropriate topic for consideration "Thanksgiving day."

—The effects of Mrs. Geo. B. Anderson, dec'd, were sold Saturday. The farm, which lies within a mile of town, some 80 acres, more or less, was bought by John Ellis and Arch. Frye at $23.40. It lies on both sides of the Liberty pike. Frye gets the portion east of the road and Ellis the portion west, including the buildings. Esquire Ellis sold his town property opposite the mill to Mr. VanArsdale for $800. Anthony Hinnu sold his Hustonville residence to Mrs. Rogers (sister of Mrs. W. B. Williams) of Cincinnati. John W. Reid bought the property of Mr. Tuttle—the Williams residence.

It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs; allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for diseases of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy.

"My wife had a distressing cough, with pains in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has cured her. A neighbor, Mrs. Glenn, had a bad cough, and the cough was relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have no hesitation in recommending this

The Russellville Herald is not far from right when it says that "the leaders of the prohibitionists in this district have nominated a candidate for Congress in the interest of the republicans, and with the hope of defeating McCreary. They know that they have not the remotest chance of electing their candidate, J. A. Noe, and they know that the democrats and not the republicans will suffer on account of their putting a candidate in the field. It is daily becoming more and more evident that the leaders of that party in the blue-grass region are hostile to the democratic party, and willing to defeat democratic candidates, even when they gain no benefit from the defeat, but know that all the benefit goes to the republicans." Democrats with prohibition proclivities should ponder on these things and not permit themselves to be used by republicans masking under the prohibition disguise to further their ends.

The National debt decrease for September was about $14,500,000. The total bonds, not yet due, purchased to relieve the treasury of the surplus, amount to $60,186,000 and they cost $73,340,398. The policy of the republican party is to continue piling up the surplus by exacting onerous taxes to buy bonds at a tremendous premium and thus make the rich richer and the poor poorer. The democrats promise to reduce taxation to the least amount necessary to pay the expenses of the government economically administered and to meet all its obligations at maturity. The thinking men of the country will not find it hard to decide between them on the 6th of November.

OLD BARNUM, the showman, who said he would sell out his entire worldly possessions, if Cleveland was elected, at 50 cents on the dollar, but who not only refused to stand to his agreement, but put a higher price on them instead, has been working his jaw again. This time he says the Mills bill will ruin the country and everything will go to the devil. The old fellow, having said that the American people are the easiest to humbug in the world, is evidently trying to pursue the same methods in politics that he does in the show business.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in State convention at Glasgow, refused to endorse the woman's suffrage plank of the prohibition platform, on the ground that they were not ready for that "department" yet. We do not believe that the true women of Kentucky will ever be ready for it, and the union was wise in its action. Mrs. Lula Nield, who it is said will shortly remove to Louisville, was elected president for the ensuing year; Mrs. C. A. Leach, of Louisville, corresponding secretary and Mrs. James A. Mitchell, of Bowling Green, recording secretary.

During the session of the Pulaski court of claims last week Editor Rucker printed this paragraph in the Reporter: "Will a county magistrate sell out for a drink of whisky? Say yes, and name the man." Whereupon he was cited to appear before the august body for contempt, and although he swore like a little man that he didn't mean that court, but some other one, he was fined $3 and costs. This is rather a high handed proceeding on the part of the court, which, to say the least, is pretty suspicious about its own integrity.

Fixing it next to impossible to get republican speakers to discuss the issues of the campaign with the democrats, Chairman Mitchell Alford, of the State Central Committee, has addressed an open letter to Gen. Landrum, chairman of the republican committee, requesting an arrangement for joint discussion. The general would no doubt like to arrange, but it is doubtful if he can get any of his speakers who are willing to stand up and be made a laughing stock of.

It is stated on good authority that Gov. Porter, who refused to run for governor of Indiana to help pull Harrison through, has given it as his candid opinion that the general cannot carry Indiana and that he will not be elected. A good many other republicans are of the same way of thinking, but they are not honest enough to admit it.

Buows, the man who married 33 women, was convicted at Detroit Friday of bigamy, on the oath of 15 of his victims, who were present, and sentenced to 4 years and 6 months in the pen. He is perhaps the fellow of whom it was written, "In his life he lived in clover, and when he died he died all over."

The Elizabethtown News has reached the 26th year of a most successful existence. For a large part of the time it has been under the wise and conservative management of Mr. H. A. Sommers, who has demonstrated his ability as an excellent and painstaking journalist, and shown himself fully deserving of the fine support he has received.

The Louisville Truth's get-off on the other papers of that city Sunday was one of the best of the many bright things that have emanated from the pen of Genius Ben Ridgely.

SENATOR VOORHEES, who has been speaking in Indiana, says, "I have never seen the Indiana democracy in such excellent condition. The only thing I fear is over-confidence. The whole State is a blazing torch-light procession from one end to the other. Even our opponents concede that the advantage is now with us. It is as safe to Cleveland as it is Texas."

The frost did not extend as far South as Jacksonville, but the yellow scourge is on the decline, though the condition there is bad enough yet. Sunday there were 79 new cases and 6 deaths, making a grand total of 2,626 cases and 255 deaths to date. At Decatur there were two deaths and 15 cases under treatment.

If the leaders of the prohibitionists are not aiming their work especially against the democrats, why have not some of them challenged Mr. Ewell for a joint debate? He was speaking around in this county for nearly a week and we heard no demand on him from them for a division of time.

The republicans in the 7th gave Col. A. M. Swope the nomination for Congress and he will have to meet the Silver-Tongued Breckinridge in joint debate, or fall back on that sore throat again.

FALL FASHIONS.

The Latest Made in Hats and Bonnets—Mantles, Cloaks and Gowns of Charming Make—Ribbons, Gloves, Collars and Cuffs—Minor Matters.

[Special New York Correspondence.] Dark-colored straw hats and bonnets will be worn late into the fall, according to English style. The Directoire shape trimmed with heavy ribbons and autumn foliage is good form for this season. Some of the old-fashioned shapes are tied down with narrow ribbons, the severe edges being softened with plaitings of ribbon or flowers nestled under the brim. For those who prefer to start with winter millinery early the fall styles will soon be on exhibition. The new bonnets will be longer in the crown than last year, thus indicating a return to low coiffures. There is still a tendency to trim from back to front with large, full bows of ribbon.

Bonnets for autumn wear have the frame entirely covered with loops of straight-edged ribbon starting from the back of the crown. Black ribbon with a cashmere border is handsome made up in this way. Gros grain is more stylish now than moire ribbon, its only rival being velvet ribbon. The new toques have long oval crowns without brims and trimmed full in front, with velvet, wings, birds or small panaches of feathers.

Directoire revers, turn-over collars and yokes of velvet are features of autumn mantles. For traveling the most comfortable are the Normandy cloaks of dark Henrietta. The front laps with a velvet revers and cashmere border. There is a coat-sleeve with a velvet cuff and long open sleeves above, also trimmed with cashmere gullion.

Directoire redingotes, with the skirt portion cut away slightly at the waist to show a stitch beneath, are to be extensively worn. Half-season mantles are made of silk-ene, velvet, face-cloth and fancy cloths, with invisible stripes and checks. The model shown here is of beige lady's cloth, braided and beaded with bronze.

Plain ungored skirts are now abridged or smoked to a short pointed waist. The bottom is trimmed with braiding, bias bands of velvet or ribbon and a sash folded over the hips and looped at the side.

Green is par excellence. The favorite color for the coming season especially in the grayish shades of lichen, reseda, rush and cedar green.

To compensate for the plainness of skirts the waist will be as elaborate, if not more so, than ever. New pascaderies, embroidered and metal thread laces have been introduced so that new and effective garnitures may be expected.

The cashmere-figured borders are by far the handsomest of the bordered costumes imported this fall. These can be had in either grave or gay patterns, some of the grays with a suggestion of porcelain blue and Indian red are wonderfully rich and quiet.

Bordered costumes also come in the silk importations. Dull rich cashmere patterns are the best and most expensive, though there are some flower patterns that are in good taste. Blouse vests are a pretty feature of fall gowns. A navy-blue wool dress has saque fronts and a fine plaid blouse vest and revers of red India silk. Folds of the silk and a long buckie form a pointed belt in front.

A promenade costume is made of checkered English tweed plaid skirt and a tunic draped in plaits. Double-breasted bodice and coat sleeves. The diaphanous quality of ball and reception dresses will be preserved this season with the addition of fringes and long trailing shades of flowers. For young ladies the palest shades of green with maiden hair trimmings is the newest thing, also the clear pale shade of yellow-brown as canary embroidered in gold thread. Black tulle embroidered with copper is effective for a married lady.

A charming gown, just unpacked from Paris, has an accordion skirt of tan colored crepe. No drapery, but a long Directoire coat of blue brocade. The waist-coat is from 3.50 to 4.50 fowls, according to the season of the year. By a system of drop decks the fowls are loaded and unloaded at the bottom of the car, the sides of which are of strong wire netting, in which are the doors to the several compartments. On the top of the car in the center is a water tank large enough to supply a full load on a journey of 2,000 miles. Each compartment is supplied on three sides with abundant food and water, by a system of troughs and hose that is easily worked on the inside, no matter how great a speed the train may be going at. The food is carried in a box or tank beneath the car.

The Benefits of Cold Water. The Prohibition speaker had occupied a half hour while waiting for the principal orator of the evening, and had closed a long sentence with: "But the reasons I have given you are but a few of those that could be given to show the benefits of cold water," when a telegram was put into his hand.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, after reading the telegram, "I regret to have to announce that Mr. Thumper, who was to address you to-night, is detained elsewhere miles east of here by a wash-out."—Judge.

scarlet gros grain ribbon for a waistcoat and under part of the cuff, as the only touch of color about the costume, and wonderfully effective it is, too. The Oxford ties are of two shades of gray suede.

All kinds of blouse and belted waists will be worn in the house. Surah, crape and India silk over lace and net skirts for evening house wear. Sashes of every form and kind are fashionable indeed; on some gowns they are the principal feature. The newest variety springs from the shoulder, down the front, caught at the waist with a buckle, drawn over the hips and tied in a full long bow at the side or back.

THE APIARY.

Honey Without Effort—How to Keep Bees to Prevent Swarming and to Protect Them from the Ravages of Insects.

I keep my bees in a cupboard two feet square, says a writer in Farm and Home. It is made of matched pine, having two shelves, with a space between each shelf and the side of the hive, so that the bees can circulate as freely as possible. The hive also has two doors in front, one made of glass and the other a wooden door shutting into it and excluding all the light. The two fasten together with a clasp-spring and lock and key. The cupboard or hive stands in the chamber of my horse barn with a spout running from its bottom part through a space made for the purpose about six inches wide. Where the bees enter from the outside the chute should be much smaller than nearer the cupboard, with the top board three-fourths of an inch shorter than the bottom, so that the bees can alight before entering the cupboard. The spout extends about six inches from the barn.

There is a large body of bees in the cupboard, probably half a bushel or more. They breed the same as in other hives but never swarm, for the reason that they have plenty of room. I have never been troubled with milks. My bees have been in the same cupboard for fourteen years and they give us quantities of honey for family use and for friends. The sweets can not be taken out until frosty mornings. I never use any boxes, as the shelves are used by the bees for the honey. I prefer this method to all others because I can not spend my time as a bee-keeper, and by this system get a good supply of the sweets with no trouble. No horns blow in haying time to call me home to hive the bees. In cold weather there is no trouble except that the bees are sometimes tempted to fly on warm days. They should be shut in until the weather is warm enough for them to leave without becoming chilled.

Perhaps for the honey-loving farmer's family who do not care to trouble with bees and yet wish enough of the delicacy for home use, this is the most simple and preferable way of getting it. When honey is desired in warm weather the bees can be rendered temporarily stupid with smoke, care being taken, of course, not to smoke them too much nor set the barn afire.

How to Pack Apples.

Country shippers and packers of apples should make it a point to pack their fruit honestly; that is, have the fruit run alike all through the barrel. Do not endeavor to cause deception by placing good, sound, large fruit on the top and bottom of the barrel and fill in the middle with a lot of gnarly, wormy and decayed fruit. It does not pay. The deception is easily detected upon investigation, and merchants do not care to have fraud practiced upon them, neither do they care to practice it on their customers.

Full regulation-sized barrels should be used. Take the barrel, one head out, nail the hoops and break off the ends of the nails at the inside; place a layer of two of apples, fair, smooth and bright, as closely as possible, stems downward, on the lower end, then fill up a basket full at a time, throwing out small, wormy, gnarly and windfall apples, and shaking the barrel well after each deposit until it is full two inches above the rim; place the head squarely on apples, and with a screw or lever press force it into place and nail securely. Turn over the barrel and mark name of apple with red or black ink, or stencil. Bear in mind that, to be shipped safely, fruit must be packed tight, to prevent rattling or bruising. In shipping apples the first of the season—early varieties—shippers should see that openings are cut on the side of the barrels and also in both ends, to admit of free circulation of air, which will greatly help to bring apples through in good condition during warm weather.

Palace Cars for Hens.

One of the latest improvements in the transportation of poultry is a patent palace car on the Lackawanna railroad, designed for the conveyance of live fowls. According to the Railway News, the car is two feet higher than the ordinary freight car, contains 110 compartments, each one four feet square, in a series of eight decks, with an aisle running through it crosswise and another one lengthwise. The capacity of the car is from 3,500 to 4,500 fowls, according to the season of the year. By a system of drop decks the fowls are loaded and unloaded at the bottom of the car, the sides of which are of strong wire netting, in which are the doors to the several compartments. On the top of the car in the center is a water tank large enough to supply a full load on a journey of 2,000 miles. Each compartment is supplied on three sides with abundant food and water, by a system of troughs and hose that is easily worked on the inside, no matter how great a speed the train may be going at. The food is carried in a box or tank beneath the car.
